

Dear Stockholders, Health Care Providers, Partners, Patients and Employees,

As you can imagine we continue to carefully oversee the global COVID-19 pandemic. We continue to monitoring the situation day-by-day around the world to ensure, first and foremost, patient and employee safety.

For our clinical trials we continue to be in close communication with our CRO and clinical sites – in many cases on a daily basis to ensure patient safety and business continuity through this difficult period.

Similarly, we are taking appropriate steps to protect our employees and their families and communities, including limitation of nonessential travel and leveraging technology resources to maintain “social distancing”.

As for potential supply chain impact, last year, in anticipation of possible tariff escalation, we undertook a complete and thorough evaluation of our entire supply chain and took additional steps to ensure continued supply of key materials. As a result, with the current crisis, we believe we are in an advantageous position regarding our global supply chain.

We have seen impact to certain programs and timelines. The situation is extremely fluid and may change at any time. If we do see additional material impact as a result of COVID-19 we will take the necessary steps to provide updates via press releases. We ask that you monitor our releases for the most updated information.

Please feel free to contact us at ir@arenapharm.com if you require additional information.

And please stay safe.
